THUNDERBIRD

THE STORY

A majestic creature in Uchucklesaht mythology who resides in the “Thunderbird’s Nest”, nestled among five mountains in the rain forest surrounding Hucuktlis [Ho-Chuck-lis] Lake, British Columbia, Canada.

It is believed the Thunderbird flashes its eyes to create lightning and flaps its wings to deliver thunder over the lands of the Uchucklesaht. In this way, the Thunderbird is said to be the guardian and protector of the tribe’s sacred lake and the keeper of its pristine supply of drinking water.

Located on Canada’s rugged west coast of Vancouver Island, the Uchucklesaht Tribe is blessed with sacred and protected areas where they have been conducting spiritual practices and sustainable living for centuries. To us, everything in life is inter-connected. One of the most sacred spots is the T’iitsk’in [teet-skin] artesian spring which delivers what some might call, the freshest and purest water on the planet.

WATER IS LIFE

HISH-UK-ISH-TSA-WAK

We believe that everything in life is connected. Starting from the mountain tops in the Thunderbird's nest, and flowing as water down to the forests, the wildlife and the fish which have sustained the Uchucklesaht people since the beginning of time.

Water has played an integral part in the tribe's culture and heritage. As the tribe and our people continue to protect and conserve the over 1,900 hectares of pristine lands surrounding Hucuktilis [Ho-Chuck-lis] Lake, we are compelled to share our story with the world by sharing the one resource which has been with us through time immemorial.

Balance describes the carbonation levels of the bottled water.

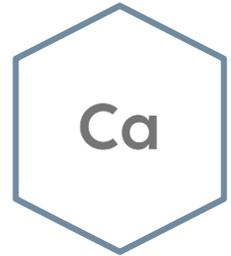

MINERALITY
super low [0 - 50 mg/l]

PRODUCT OF CANADA

We support entrepreneurs and self-sufficiency.

Nestled in the mountainous western shores of Vancouver Island, Thunderbird Spirit Water is sourced from the much-revered naturally protected T'it'sk'in [teet-skin] Artesian Spring. Fierce Pacific storms constantly replenish the waters that flow into the towering five mountain-peaks known as Thunderbird's Nest or T'it'sk'in Paawats [Teet-Skin Powats]. The earth itself filters and purifies Thunderbird Spirit Water as it naturally passes through underground filters ridding itself from microbes and pollutants as it flows naturally toward the spring. The result is a clean, crisp and refreshing premium luxury water given for your health and enjoyment in our classic glass bottle.

Thunderbird Spirit Water; pure, premium, protected.

JOIN OUR CAUSE

Every year, we provide safe water for First Nations communities.

The northern Ontario community of Kashechewan made headlines all over Canada in 2005, when its poor water quality and unsanitary conditions forced the evacuation of 1,000 of its residents. The evacuation order raised awareness about a much larger problem: more than 80 First Nations communities are currently under “boiled water advisories” and 21 communities are deemed to be at high-risk for contamination. In Canada, contamination and inadequate water and sanitation services in First Nations communities are a real and present threat to human health and the environment.

We donate a percentage from every bottle directly to providing safe drinking water to First Nations communities across Canada. Please join our cause.
